Ballajura¹ Walks

Joyce Parke (Ballajura, Western Australia)

Walking north along Bellefin Drive is seeing plane trees planted on the east side, eucalyptus marginata and xanthorrhoeas² replanted on the west side of this road leading to Hepburn

Avenue, winding just south of a biologically intact stretch of homeland called Cullacabardee³ where, at Baal Street, a small Nyungar community (Nyungah, the Last of the River People) dwells apart from yet is a part of other storytellers, walkers, painters, poets living close to the coast, the city, the foothills. Made to transport country and coastal-plain dwellers west towards the Indian Ocean, east towards the Darling Ranges, Hepburn Avenue seems to ask if scarps, plains, trees – texts, tenets, themes – are colleagues and kin and kindreds of land and sea.

¹ Ballajura is the name of a place on the Isle of Man and the name Ernest Kerruish gave to the land he purchased for a farm near Perth, Western Australia, on arriving from the Isle of Man in 1905 – in what is now known as the suburb of Ballajura. Thanks to my former neighbour, Vanya Chatley, for supplying the history.

² Xanthorrhoea, any plant of the genus xanthorrhoea, also known as the grass tree, and native to Western Australia.

³ Meeting Place.
