Make effective decisions about platforms

Question: Are you looking to connect with People in Industry or Researcher to Researcher (R2R) or Academic to Academic (A2A)?

Make effective decisions about the platform(s) you adopt, based on:

- who you want to connect with, and
- what you want to do on the platform
- No platform is mutually exclusive
- Each has different strengths
- Each has different user demographics

Find your audience where they naturally occur.

Observe, be mindful of space and interact with respect.
Search Results

If being found is important…

…consider the aggregate picture when setting your priorities for adopting platforms…

e.g. Where is your profile on that platform likely to rank in search results for you?

---

Legend

- ECU Staff Profile
- PDF on ECU Research Online
- ECU Research Online Profile
- LinkedIn Profile
- Academia.edu Profile
- ResearchGate.net Profile
- Google Scholar Profile
Don’t discount the workload each profile brings

Expect to spend at least 15m – 45m on your profile per week, per platform, e.g.

- General day-to-day updates and interactions
- Fostering the connections and collaborations you are on the platform to develop
- Requirement updates each time your situation changes or you complete:
  - Projects
  - Publications
  - Activities
- Monitoring and participating in groups you are connected to Consider: Your digital footprint and your security online

- Be careful what you put online, it’s permanent
- Be conservative about your digital footprint
- You may be releasing more information about yourself than you realise (metadata leaks)
- People can aggregate this data over time to build a picture of you
- Don’t share your home address, birthday, location, mobile phone/home phone
- Be restrictive about contact methods

Think about identifying yourself for outsiders

- Define acronyms as well as including them
- Be consistent
- Try not to be “inventive” with names
