January 2010

A Walking Meditation

Andrew Burke

Follow this and additional works at: https://ro.ecu.edu.au/landscapes

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation
Retrieved from https://ro.ecu.edu.au/landscapes/vol4/iss1/15

This Poetry is posted at Research Online. https://ro.ecu.edu.au/landscapes/vol4/iss1/15
A Walking Meditation by Andrew Burke

I walked along a track that runs to the river
that runs to the ocean;

I walked to aerate
the stream that flows
within my mortal frame.

I saw on the first woodchip corner between long dry grasses

a yin-yang mandala
drawn in white sand
from the long jump pit

of the primary school.
Memory made tracks to Tibetan monks in flowing robes writing sandy sutras in air-conditioned spaces

of city art galleries.

As I stood I thought of the wave of East to West

through Beatles to Menuhin, bringing the world
closer together -

followed by faiths
with armed believers
dying for eternity.

Balance?
These days are built on shifting sands.

Andrew Burke is an Australian writer with books of poetry published, small plays decades ago, short stories in literary mags, and a novel waiting to be published.