Walking

Mardi May

Follow this and additional works at: https://ro.ecu.edu.au/landscapes

Part of the Poetry Commons

Recommended Citation
Retrieved from https://ro.ecu.edu.au/landscapes/vol4/iss1/18

This Poetry is posted at Research Online. https://ro.ecu.edu.au/landscapes/vol4/iss1/18 Walking  by Mardi May

I walk east into a bright morning
hat pulled low,
eyes squinting;

west along the steady
course of the sun,
eyes squinting,
hat pulled low.

Mad woman with a note pad navigating the long road, feet zigzagging the erratic path of inspiration.

I search horizons
for the dawning of an idea,
throw words at the sky,
winnow them against the wind.

Somewhere,
between sunrise and sunset
in this slow sift of syntax, I find a poem.

Mardi May has written many award winning short stories and poems, which have been widely published and performed. She has written four books on social history and four poetry books, the most recent being a verse novella. She is a member of the Katharine Susannah Prichard Writers' Centre, where she facilitates the social history and poetry groups, and is a member of the Literary Advisers Board and management committee.